

CBET Practice Test Questions and Answers

1. What does CBET stand for in biomedical technology?

- A) Certified Biomedical Equipment Technician
- B) Clinical Biomedical Engineering Technology
- C) Certified Biomedical Electronics Trainer
- D) Clinical Biomedical Equipment Testing

2. Which electrical safety test is most critical for patient-connected medical equipment?

- A) Ground resistance testing
- B) Leakage current testing
- C) Insulation resistance testing
- D) Power consumption testing

3. What is the primary purpose of preventive maintenance on medical equipment?

- A) To reduce equipment costs
- B) To ensure patient safety and equipment reliability
- C) To increase equipment speed
- D) To upgrade software features

4. According to NFPA 99 standards, what is the maximum allowable leakage current for patient care equipment?

- A) 10 microamperes
- B) 100 microamperes
- C) 500 microamperes
- D) 1000 microamperes

Answers: 1-A 2-B 3-B 4-B

For More CBET Questions and Answers FREE, CBET Online Prep Training, CBET Exam, CBET Study Guide, CBET Flashcards, CBET Quizzes visit:

CBET Practice Test